Class 240

'Exercise Book' by Jacques Prevert

Two and two four
four and four eight
eight and eight sixteen ...
Once again! says the master
two and two four
four and four eight
eight and eight sixteen.
But look! the lyre-bird high on the wing
the child sees it
the child hears it
the child calls it
Save me
play with me
bird!
So the bird alights
and plays with the child
Two and two four
Once again! says the master and the child plays
and the bird plays too ...
Four and four eight
and twice sixteen makes what?
Twice sixteen makes nothing lease of all thirty-two anyhow
and off they go.
For the child has hidden the bird in his desk
and all the children
hear its song
and all the children
hear the music
and eight and eight in their turn off they go
and four and four and two and two
In their turn fade away And one and one make neither one nor two but one by one off they go.

And the lyre-bird sings and the child sings
and the master shouts
When you've quite finished playing the fool!
But all the children are listening to music and the walls of the classroom quietly crumble.
The windowpanes turn
once more to sand
the ink is sea
the desk is trees
the chalk is cliffs
and the quill pen
a bird again
